

Folkestone Harbour Arm Call Out For Weekly Sunday Market Traders New to Retro, Antique to Vintage – Showcasing a fine selection of clothing, jewellery, furniture, interiors and artisans products

Folkestone Harbour Arm Marketplace is returning with a weekly Sunday market from the beginning of May at the newly restored Folkestone Harbour Station. Situated underneath a glass canopy in one of Kent's most unique outdoor market settings. We are inviting new applications from designers, makers, vintage sellers, antique and retro collectors and artisan producers from across Kent and London.

We want to bring a vibrant, fun and animated atmosphere to the station platforms with enthusiastic people who sell quality and locally produced products that are not found on the high street. The Marketplace is also perfect for entrepreneurs or new startups who want to introduce new products or ideas to a broad range of people without breaking the bank.

If this sounds like something that you would like to be a part of, please get in touch at markets@folkestonefringe.com with a brief description of:

- Who you are.
- What you do/sell.
- A link to, or pictures of your products.
- An indication of the frequency of your availability to trade.

Pitch prices are being introduced at £25 per day and trading hours will be every Sunday from 11am-5pm between May - September 2019.

Further Information

Folkestone Harbour Arm has won its place as one of the top destinations in Kent with its ever-growing collection of food and drink entrepreneurs and producers. Visitors access the Harbour Arm via the station platforms, and with a footfall of over 600,000 people in 2018 from across the UK and continent, there is huge potential to reach this passing trade. The architecture of the space speaks for itself – the station has been lovingly restored and the platforms are lined with low level seating attracting people to linger, relax and enjoy the surroundings. Pop-up food, drinks and music events will create a great atmosphere encouraging your customers to browse, shop and hang-out.
